THEY ACTUALLY DO THE WORK

Food Eaten Is Worthless Unless Digested—Some Stomachs Must Have Help.

Food taken into the stomach, which, from the nature of the food or the condition of the stomach, is not digested, is worse than no food at all. This is a true statement as far as the health of the body is concerned. Many dyspeptics go only this far with their reasoning. They argue with themselves that because they cannot digest the food they eat, they must starve. They give less work to their stomachs in other words, they must starve. They are not aware that a business man who is unable to do all his own work can get help by employing a clerk. In the same way, a man who cannot digest his food can get help by employing a sensible business man to help him digest his food. The sensible business man employs help and goes forward with his business. Likewise the sensible dyspeptic will employ help for his stomach and give his body proper nourishment.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets actually do the work assigned to them. They relieve weak and overburdened stomachs and great portion of digestive action. Their component parts are identical with those of the digestive fluids and secretions of the stomach, and they simply take up the kind and carry on the work just the same as a good, strong, healthy stomach would do it.

On this account Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are perfectly natural in their action and effects. They do not cause any unnatural or violent disturbance in the stomach or bowels, but they simply take up the food and supply the system with all the nourishment contained in what is eaten and carry out Nature's plan for the sustenance and maintenance of the body.

How much more sensible is this method than that employed by many sufferers from weak stomachs. By this means the body and brain get all the good, nutritious food they need and the man is properly nourished and equipped to carry on his work and perform his duties. He could not possibly be in better working condition by starving himself or employing some new fangled, inefficient food that does not contain enough nutriment for a year old baby. A strong man doing strong work must be properly fed, and this applies to the brain as well as to the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, by relieving the stomach of its work, enable it to recuperate and regain its normal health and strength. Nature repairs the worn and weakened tissues just as she heals and knits the bone of a broken limb, which, of course, is not under the process of repair.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box, and they are the only article that a dyspeptic does not try to sell something in the place of that "just as good." Their unequalled record and success have led to the demand for them has placed them within the reach of every one.

HAS LARGE COLLECTION OF AUTOGRAPH LIKENESSES OF PERSONS PROMINENT IN THE THEATRICAL WORLD.

The comic opera and musical comedy section of the collection.

A corner of the greenroom showing part of the collection of photographs.

Artemus Ward once said that there are two classes of humans in the world—people and actors.

To a great many the actor stands pre-eminent in the limelight of the imagination, which gives to the leading man and his heroic deeds of the "heavy" and his consummate acts of villainy the attributes or qualities which they portray upon the flat wooden surface of the mimic world.

Then, again, the prime essential of the mimic generally is that he or she be good looking, although the majority of those who have reached stellar success are not, and, therefore, take good likenesses, which are easily subject to idealization. Reproductions of them clipped from the magazines and newspapers are used for decorating the den of the matinee girl and will cover a multitude of discrepancies in the plastering.

But there are some who have gone about collecting photographs of stage people in an earnest and systematic manner because it is in the direct line of their effort to do so, and they have regarded it as a fad and not a folly.

In this latter class is Harry Holthaus, who for twenty-one years has been stage manager of the Olympic Theater, and who has during that time collected more than 200 photographs of prominent theatrical people who have been before the public during that time.

Each of the photographs is authentic and bears the autograph of the donor, and in every instance the picture was presented personally to Mr. Holthaus.

This collection has never left the theater and is artistically arranged upon the walls of the actors' lounge-room, or what is commonly known as the greenroom.

Unlike most of the theaters which were built during the same period, the Olympic has large and ample provisions for the accommodation of the actors, especially in the matter of dressing-rooms and the greenroom. The latter room occupies the entire space beneath the stage, and its walls offer an excellent place for the display of Mr. Holthaus's collection.

At one end of the greenroom, hung in a separate frame, are the pictures of the All-Star Company, who toured the Middle West and East several years ago in "The Rivals." Julia Marlowe, then Julia Marlowe Taber, was the leading lady. Others in the cast were: Mrs. John Drew, Fanny Rice, Joseph Jefferson, Joseph and E. M. Holland, Francis Wilson and Nat Goodwin.

Belonging to the old school are pictures of John McCullough, Edwin Booth, Mary Anderson, Clara Morris and others.

There is a picture of Edith May, which is valued very highly by Mr. Holthaus, inasmuch as it was among the first pictures taken of that comedian when he appeared in St. Louis in "Robinson Crusoe" and captured the city with his delightful clowning.

The people of the stage who have come from St. Louis are well represented. Among them is Rose Flynn, recently seen here with Clara Bloodgood; Charles Woodrow, who until a few years ago was the assistant treasurer of the Olympic Theater; Archie Boyd, who is starring in the plays made famous by Denman Thompson, and Grace Van Studdiford, who this year is starring in De Koven's new opera, "The Red Feather."

DELAY MAY BE FATAL TO HANNA.

Politicians Think if the Ohio Senator Intends to Run He Should Say So at Once.

OFFICEHOLDERS ARE ANXIOUS.

Those Who Would Hold Their Patronage Until March Will Not Run Chance of Working for Him.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
Washington, Jan. 23.—The politicians who are following the developments of the anti-Roosevelt movement are beginning to think that Senator Hanna's candidacy, unless announced in the near future, may be untimely and probably too late to defeat President Roosevelt.

The Ohio Senator's plans are not known, if they have been formed, but the surface indications are that the National Committeeman is open to conviction as to whether he should enter the contest, and that at the proper time he will be found in the hands of his friends, "deferring to overwhelming pressure," and so forth.

But the politicians who have watched such movements say that the element of time is all-essential to success. They point to the early clamor for Admiral Dewey to enter the Presidential contest and the lack of echo his announcement caused when made too late.

In the case of Mr. Hanna it is pointed out that the influential Republicans of the Senate and House and the party workers throughout the country who want to continue their hold upon patronage until next March, will not run the chance of ditching themselves in that quarter unless there is a reasonable assurance given very soon that by foregoing present favors they may get still better ones under a new regime.

According to the best information President Roosevelt has, there is a suspicion that he will get into it too late to secure the nomination. The administration generally has a certain difficulty held by the two United States District Courts for want of jurisdiction.

TAFT HURRYING TO WASHINGTON.

Arrives at San Francisco From the Philippines, and Boards Eastern Train.

WILL ENTER THE CABINET.

Says Russian-Japanese Situation Is Quite Warlike, but Trouble May Be Bridged Over.

San Francisco, Jan. 23.—Former Governor Taft of the Philippines arrived here this morning on the steamer Korea.

With him were Mrs. Taft, their two children, Fred Carpenter, his secretary, and Judge Withey, Attorney General of the Philippines, who is traveling with the Governor's party on his way home on leave of absence.

The Governor was met by representatives of the army and navy and civil officials on the tug Golden Gate, to which the party was transferred after the Korea had reached the anchorage station. The tug carried its passengers to the Oakland mole, where Governor Taft boarded the Eastern overland train for Washington.

On arriving at the capital he will at once assume his duties as Secretary of War.

In regard to the trouble between Japan and Russia and the general situation that prevailed when he left the Orient, Governor Taft said that affairs looked quite warlike. He had hopes, however, that the crisis might yet be bridged over and peace preserved.

Governor Taft said that conditions were better in the East than ever before, and he doubted if such tranquility ever prevailed, even under the Spanish administration.

"We are looking forward," he said, "to a period of great activity in railroad building throughout the islands. English and Belgian capitalists have so far controlled the field, but the people of the islands are anxious for the introduction of American capital, which so far has not been forthcoming."

"This may be due to the fact that it is too much occurred in other branches of industry or perhaps investors of this country are too afraid, lacking the experience of English promoters in dealing with financial matters in the Orient."

"One American syndicate, headed by a Mr. Swift of Boston, has been engaged in the construction of electric railroads, gridironing the streets of Manila, with the object in view of extensions which will connect the suburban branches."

"Two new branch lines have just been authorized by the Government, one of thirty-five miles and another of fifty-one miles on the line of road running out for a distance of 25 miles from the city of Manila. This road was originally built by English capital."

"English capitalists are now seeking franchises in other directions, and Secretary Root has had two surveys made for two or three miles back and forth, already been published and for which estimates have been made."

RETURN AND SURRENDERS.

George Dawson Ready to "Take His Medicine" for Theft.

George Dawson of No. 325 Spruce street walked into the Central District Station yesterday and stated that he was ready to "take his medicine" for the theft of a barrel of flour.

"For what are you wanted?" asked Captain Reynolds.

"I stole $19.50, which I had collected for several barrels of flour," replied Dawson.

"I ran away, but I have been troubled ever since, and I'm ready to take my medicine."

Half an hour before Dawson gave himself up to the police, he had been employed as a teamster, had visited the office of Assistant Chief of Detectives Keely and withdrawn $50 which he had deposited to cover the costs of bringing Dawson back from Lebanon, Ill., where he had been located.

"I have decided to withdraw the money," said Kaufman, "as I believe Dawson will come back and surrender of his own accord."

Chief Keely agreed with Kaufman in his belief that Dawson would return, and he was not surprised when he received a report from Captain Reynolds of Dawson's surrender.

Kaufman employed Dawson to haul flour for the Bauer Flour Company of No. 127 North Second street, and it is alleged that on last Monday Dawson took out a load of flour, collected $19.50 which he had hidden in his home, and arrangements
